arta

arta* marks a turning point in the design of wood chairs.

A newly developed technology connecting the frame allows the chair legs and plinths to slant in extremely elegant lines unprecedented with wood chairs up to now. Innovative technology and well-conceived construction have paved the way for this high-class, gracious design of arta. The lightness of the solid wood frame is even more accentuated by the seatshell with its flexible, sprung plywood back.

arta's design mainly aims at combining the "harmonious" character of wood – natural, warm and comfortable – with future technological demands.

Wooden chairs in modern office architecture?

arta is an attractive option, especially for middle and upper management communication and recreation areas. It is extremely versatile for applications in public areas: ranging from hotel restaurants, places of worship, museums and galleries, multi-purpose areas and halls for cultural and public events.

Newly developed technology connecting the frame allows the chair legs and plinths to slant in extremely elegant lines.

arta's* high standard of quality is not only reflected in its design, but also in its construction and use of materials.

The construction is notable for its sturdy, long-lasting quality. The high-quality luxury upholstery perfectly supports long sitting periods. All wooden parts come from ecologically managed renewable forests (PEFC-certified wood).

arta offers interesting differentiation options:

Frame and shell are available in many beech and oak shades.
The plywood shell is available either upholstered or with a laminated surface in several colours:

-  300 black
-  302 meadow green
-  304 white
-  306 china red
-  308 pastel blue
-  310 basalt grey
